Dear Friends, Partners and Supporters,

As our communities and our nation face the extraordinary and unprecedented challenges posed by the coronavirus crisis, we at Boys Town want you to know that you and your family are in our prayers and that we are tremendously grateful for your continued support. In times like these, the need to serve children increases.

We know how deeply you care for the boys and girls who find hope while in our care and for the families in crisis that turn to us so they can stay together and grow stronger. That’s why I wanted to provide you with a brief update of some of the measures we are taking to ensure the safety of those we serve.

We care for thousands of boys and girls through our programs at Boys Town. We are taking important steps to safeguard the children and families in our care. They are our priority.

We are doing the same for our employees by educating our workforce on how to stay safe; restricting unnecessary travel and face-to-face meetings; and canceling or postponing fundraising events in order to minimize the risk that comes with bringing large groups of people together.

But even with all these precautions (and others that may be necessary in the weeks and months ahead), we remain committed to our mission and continue our day-to-day operations so those in greatest need can benefit from the life-changing care and resources we provide. We are able to do that because of you.

Many challenges still lie ahead. We all must pull together to meet and overcome them. That’s why your continued support and prayers for Boys Town and its mission are so crucial. I truly believe that the spirit of compassion and generosity that moves you to help our children and families is what will get us through these trying times.

If you feel called during this incredibly difficult time to provide additional support to these children and parents in need, please consider making a donation today. Words cannot fully express how much you mean to our organization and to those who turn to us in times of personal crisis.

Gratefully,

Kichelle Coleman
Executive Director Boys Town Washington DC