You look like you’re mad.

Yeah... I got in trouble at school.

1. Look at the person.
2. Observe the person’s facial expressions (smile, frown, the position of eyebrows, eye contact or no eye contact, etc.).
3. Pay attention to the person’s body language (sitting up straight, slumping posture, arms crossed, facing you or turning away, etc.)
4. Think about what the other person’s behavior might mean (smiling, eyebrows raised, eye contact, facing you, and arms open may indicate her or she is pleased or interested; frowning, eyebrows furrowed, and turning away may mean he or she is displeased or uninterested).